YOU ARE THE CEO OF YOU

THE HIGH SCHOOL JOURNAL

Build habits. Find your direction. Create your future.

MARK HANNA

30 ENTRIES

WHY I WROTE THIS

When I walked into high school as a freshman, I was already living in my third home.

My great-grandparents had raised me and had been my legal guardians. They were born in 1912 and 1915. I didn't have my mom or dad raising me. I had lost my great-grandmother when I was 10, in fourth grade, and my great-grandfather when I was 12, in seventh grade.

I was young, but I had already learned that life could change before you were ready.

By ninth grade, I felt like I had to grow up. I was thinking about more than getting through high school. I was thinking about the life waiting on the other side.

Who was I going to become? How would I support myself? What kind of future could I build?

Back then, I felt like I had one shot to get it right.

I know now that life gives us chances to learn, recover, and start again. But at that age, the pressure felt real. Every decision felt connected to my future.

So I paid attention.

I asked adults for help. I looked for guidance. I watched people who were doing well and tried to understand how they got there. How they spoke. How they worked. How they treated people. What they did when something went wrong.

I didn't know everything. I knew I couldn't afford to stop learning.

Somewhere along the way, I started thinking about the family I hoped to have one day. I hadn't met them yet, but I wanted to make them proud. I wanted to become someone they could count on.

That gave my choices a purpose.

It helped me look beyond what felt good in the moment and think about what would help me years later.

I'm sharing this because I know a student can walk into a classroom carrying a whole life nobody sees.

You may be worried about your grades. Your friends. Fitting in. What happens after graduation. You may be dealing with problems at home that make it hard to focus on any of those things.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Your story deserves to be understood.

YOUR FUTURE DESERVES ATTENTION

I don't know your whole story. But I understand what it feels like to be young and carry more than people realize.

That is where this journal comes from.

I want to help you see possibilities you may not have been shown yet. To recognize your strengths. To ask for help without feeling ashamed. To learn skills, make thoughtful choices, and build a future that matters to you.

You are the CEO of you.

You won't control everything that happens. You won't get every decision right. But you can learn to lead yourself through the choices in front of you - and find people who will help you along the way.

If you've made mistakes, you still have a future worth building.

If you feel behind, you can take a step from where you are.

If you don't know what you want to become, start by becoming someone you can count on.

Whether you're a freshman or a senior, your future deserves your attention.

I'm still building mine. Let me share what I've learned so you can start building yours.

Mark Hanna

HOW THIS WORKS

READ: Read an entry at your pace. Thirty entries do not have to mean thirty days.

REFLECT: Write honestly. Choose one action and put it into your day.

CHECK BACK: Notice what happened. Adjust at your next daily or weekly check-in.

KEEP BUILDING: Check your departments in Entry 2, after Entry 15, and in Entry 29. Plan your next 90 days in Entry 30.

Your writing is personal. In a group, share only what you choose. You do not need to disclose private family or money details.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Ask for help. Take your next step.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

YOUR 30-ENTRY JOURNEY

> Read. Reflect. Take one step. Come back and build on it.

Try setting aside 10-15 minutes to read and write. Longer readings or activities may take more time. You can read ahead, pause, or return to an entry. Let the actions become part of your life.

Example: You read about habits, write "pack my bag after dinner," and try it. At your next check-in, notice what helped or what needs to change.

Check a box after you read the entry and choose an action. A checkmark records a step, not perfection. No dates or deadlines are required here.

ENTRIES 1-10 | START BUILDING

- [ ] Entry 1
- [ ] Entry 2
- [ ] Entry 3
- [ ] Entry 4
- [ ] Entry 5
- [ ] Entry 6
- [ ] Entry 7
- [ ] Entry 8
- [ ] Entry 9
- [ ] Entry 10

ENTRIES 11-20 | KEEP PRACTICING

- [ ] Entry 11
- [ ] Entry 12
- [ ] Entry 13
- [ ] Entry 14
- [ ] Entry 15
- [ ] Entry 16
- [ ] Entry 17
- [ ] Entry 18
- [ ] Entry 19
- [ ] Entry 20

ENTRIES 21-30 | PLAN WHAT COMES NEXT

- [ ] Entry 21
- [ ] Entry 22
- [ ] Entry 23
- [ ] Entry 24
- [ ] Entry 25
- [ ] Entry 26
- [ ] Entry 27
- [ ] Entry 28
- [ ] Entry 29
- [ ] Entry 30

Keep your writing private if you prefer. In a class or group, you can pass on sharing or use a made-up example. Your scores are personal reflections, not grades or tests.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

One useful action matters more than a perfect streak.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

MAKE THE COMMITMENT

> Start building your future now. Give yourself more time to grow.

The sooner you start taking responsibility for your future, the sooner you can begin making progress. It's simple: start early, give yourself a head start.

High school is the perfect time to begin. You can build good habits, discover what you're good at, and learn how to make choices that help your future.

You are the CEO of you. A CEO leads a company. Your company is you - your time, choices, health, money, relationships, and skills.

That might sound like a lot. Don't let it overwhelm you. I'm going to walk you through it, one step at a time.

You don't need to have your whole life figured out. Start with one good choice today. Ask the question. Do the work. Keep the promise. Get help when you need it.

And don't compare yourself to anyone else. Focus on becoming the best version of yourself.

I'm still building, too. I've worked hard, made mistakes, and learned along the way. What matters is using what you learn to keep moving forward.

Start by making this commitment to yourself. Then back it up with your actions.

Take it one day at a time. You'll thank yourself later.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You don't have to do everything today. Keep one promise and build from there.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

MY COMMITMENT

I commit to building the best version of myself.

I will take responsibility for my choices and my effort.

I will build good habits, keep learning, and ask for help when I need it.

I will treat myself and others with respect.

When I make a mistake, I will own my part, learn from it, and try a better way.

I will focus on my own progress instead of comparing myself to others.

I will keep building my future, one good choice at a time.

SIGNATURE

DATE

ONE PROMISE I WILL KEEP TODAY

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You don't have to do everything today. Keep one promise and build from there.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

BUILD THE COMPANY OF YOU

> You can learn from everyone - what to do and what not to do. Pay attention.

When I started high school, I was already living in my third home. I had lost my great-grandparents, who had been my parents. Deep inside, I felt like I couldn't afford to make a mistake because no one was coming to save me.

That feeling pushed me to search for guidance. I asked adults for help. I watched people who were doing well and paid attention to their choices.

I became a sponge. That's what I want you to do.

You can learn from everyone around you. Notice how people speak, treat others, keep their word, and handle problems. Some will show you what to do. Others will show you what not to do. You don't have to make every mistake yourself to learn the lesson.

Be aware. Be coachable. Ask questions. Then use what you learn.

Whether you have a strong support system or are still finding yours, you can start building the company of you.

Your company has different departments, and they work together. Without enough sleep, it's harder to focus in school. Friends who keep pulling you into trouble can pull you away from your goals. Poor time habits can leave important work unfinished.

Here are the departments we're going to build:

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Everyone can teach you something. Pay attention to the lesson.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

YOUR EIGHT DEPARTMENTS

Time and Habits: Plan your day. Repeat actions that help you.

Leadership: Make thoughtful choices. Take responsibility for your part.

Money: Learn to manage what you receive, spend, and save.

Health and Energy: Care for your body and mind. Get rest.

Relationships: Be a good friend. Choose people who help you grow.

Reputation: Keep your word. Build trust through your actions.

Learning and Growth: Ask questions. Practice skills. Accept helpful advice.

Purpose: Know what matters to you and why you want to grow.

You can add departments like faith or creativity.

I want you to make each department the best it can be. That takes time. Choose one small change and practice it.

You will make mistakes. I have, too. Your future isn't over when you get something wrong. Learn, adjust, and keep building.

One department. One improvement. One day at a time.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Everyone can teach you something. Pay attention to the lesson.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

YOUR STARTING POINT

Score each department from 1 to 10. This is a starting point, not a grade.

1-3: I need help getting started. 4-6: I'm working on it, but I'm inconsistent. 7-8: I'm doing well most of the time. 9-10: I have good habits here that I keep practicing.

Department	My score
Time and Habits
Leadership
Money
Health and Energy
Relationships
Reputation
Learning and Growth
Purpose

ONE DEPARTMENT I WANT TO STRENGTHEN FIRST

ONE SMALL CHANGE I WILL TRY

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Everyone can teach you something. Pay attention to the lesson.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

GIVE YOUR COMPANY A DIRECTION

> Choose one priority. Keep room to learn who you are.

You do not need eight goals or a final career decision. Begin with one department. You can update the plan when you learn more.

THE KIND OF PERSON I WANT TO BECOME

ONE YEAR FROM NOW, I WANT TO BE BETTER AT...

MY FIRST PRIORITY DEPARTMENT

A TRUSTED PERSON I CAN ASK FOR GUIDANCE

Your rhythm: one useful action each day; a CEO check-in each week; a midpoint checkup after Entry 15; and a company report at the end. You can read ahead without rushing the practice.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Start where you are, with the support you can find.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

GET ORGANIZED WITH YOUR TIME

> Give your day a plan. Make time for the person you want to become.

Everyone gets 24 hours in a day. We have different responsibilities, but how we use the time available to us matters.

Let's get yours organized.

Use a calendar app or get a physical calendar notebook. Choose something you will actually check. Then create your schedule.

Write down when you wake up, leave for school, and attend each class. Add assignments, due dates, practices, work, family responsibilities, and events. Include meals, time to relax, and when you go to bed.

Be specific. "Do homework" can keep getting pushed back. "Work on math from 5:00 to 5:30" gives you a place to start.

Now look at your habits. Is scrolling taking time you need for school or sleep? Are you rushing every morning because you didn't prepare the night before?

Choose one habit that slows you down. Replace it with something that helps. Pack your bag at night. Check your calendar after dinner. Put your phone away during homework.

Your time and habits are the foundation of how your company operates. Give them your attention.

You won't control every interruption. Leave some breathing room and adjust when needed. I want you to build a schedule that helps you follow through.

Start with tomorrow. Give it a plan.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Small habits, given a place in your day, can help you build a stronger future.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

BUILD YOUR SCHEDULE

Use your calendar for the full schedule. Keep this page simple.

THE CALENDAR I WILL USE

ONE HABIT I WILL REPLACE - AND WHAT I WILL DO INSTEAD

THE TIME I WILL CHECK MY CALENDAR EACH DAY

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Small habits, given a place in your day, can help you build a stronger future.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

BUILD HABITS THAT HELP YOU

> Make the helpful choice easier. Then practice it until it becomes part of your day.

Having a schedule is a start. Following it takes practice.

You might plan to study, but your phone keeps pulling you away. You might want calmer mornings, but you leave your clothes, bag, and schoolwork until the last minute.

Pay attention to the things you keep doing. Are they helping you or slowing you down?

I want you to build habits that make your life work better. Start with one.

If you keep forgetting assignments, check your schoolwork before you relax. If mornings feel rushed, get your things ready at night. If your phone interrupts every task, put it out of reach while you work.

Make the habit clear: "After dinner, I will check my assignments and pack my bag."

Then repeat it. You won't feel motivated every day. That's why you're building a routine you can follow.

Miss a day? Figure out what got in the way and return at your next chance. You're learning how to follow through.

Choose one helpful habit. Give it a time and a place. Keep practicing.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Every time you practice a helpful habit, you give yourself another chance to grow.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

PUT ONE HABIT TO WORK

THE HABIT I WANT TO BUILD

WHEN AND WHERE I WILL PRACTICE IT

ONE THING I WILL CHANGE TO MAKE IT EASIER

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Every time you practice a helpful habit, you give yourself another chance to grow.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

YOUR DAILY CEO CHECK-IN

> A short check-in can give the day some direction.

Copy these headings into a notebook or print this page again. Keep the daily check-in short. Give the actions time to become a practice.

BEFORE THE DAY: ONE PRIORITY AND WHEN I WILL WORK ON IT

AFTER THE DAY: WHAT HAPPENED / LESSON / NEXT STEP

MY SEVEN-DAY HABIT TRACKER

Choose one to three habits. Label days 1-7 with dates. Circle planned days before the week; mark done with a check and missed with a dash. Leave unplanned days empty.

Habit / planned days	1	2	3	4	5	6	7

Follow-through: _____ done / _____ planned. Three practices out of four planned = 3 / 4. Do not count rest days as misses. Return at the next planned opportunity.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A missed day does not have to become a missed month.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP | GOALS

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

GIVE YOUR COMPANY DIRECTION

> Give yourself a direction. Stay open to what you discover along the way.

When I was in high school, I wanted to become an attorney and get into politics.

As I got older, I discovered strengths in sales, working with people, and building teams. My path led me into banking, where I learned about finance and the power of managing money. Then I moved into real estate, where I learned how businesses, jobs, and development help communities grow.

I didn't see that whole path when I was your age.

That's one of the great things about starting young. You have time to explore. Try a class, sport, club, volunteer project, or skill. Pay attention to what you enjoy and what you want to get better at.

You don't need to choose your entire future today. You do need to give yourself something worth working toward.

Choose one goal. Maybe it's improving a grade, trying debate, learning a trade skill, or making a team. Break it into small steps and put the first one on your calendar.

Your goals can change as you learn about yourself. That doesn't mean you wasted your effort. The skills and lessons can go with you.

The bigger plan is to become the best version of yourself in every department - and build a life you feel good about living.

Start exploring. Give your best effort. Learn what fits you. Keep building.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You can change your direction and still move forward.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP | GOALS

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

TURN YOUR GOAL INTO ACTION

ONE GOAL I WANT TO WORK TOWARD - AND WHY IT MATTERS TO ME

THE SMALL STEPS I WILL TAKE

MY FIRST STEP, WHEN I WILL DO IT, AND WHEN I WILL CHECK MY PROGRESS

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You can change your direction and still move forward.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS | TAKING ACTION

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

TAKE A DEEP BREATH AND GET STARTED

> Give your plan a chance. Take the first step.

You have a goal. You've made a plan. Now comes the part that makes a difference: doing the work.

Maybe you keep putting off an assignment. Maybe you want to join a club but haven't asked how. Maybe you need help in a class but feel nervous talking to the teacher.

I want you to take a deep breath and get started.

You don't have to feel ready for the whole thing. Choose the first small piece. Read the directions. Write three ideas. Ask the question. Show up to the meeting.

Give that step your attention. Put away one distraction and work on what is in front of you.

If you get stuck, ask for help. Be specific: "I understand this part, but can you help me with the next step?"

Your company grows when you put your plans into action. Even a small start gives you something to build on.

Do what you can today. Notice what you finish. Then choose your next step. You'll thank yourself later.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You don't need to finish everything to make progress. Start with one useful step.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS | TAKING ACTION

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

MAKE YOUR NEXT MOVE

ONE THING I HAVE BEEN PUTTING OFF

THE FIRST SMALL STEP I WILL TAKE - AND WHEN

WHAT I GOT DONE - OR WHERE I NEED HELP

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You don't need to finish everything to make progress. Start with one useful step.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS | CHECKING YOUR PROGRESS

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

CELEBRATE THE SMALL WINS

> Notice the small steps forward. They count, too.

You started the assignment before the last minute. Asked a question you were nervous to ask. Practiced when you could have put it off.

Celebrate that. You followed through.

I want you to enjoy the small steps forward. Don't wait until you make the team, reach the grade, or finish the whole goal to recognize your effort.

Then pay attention to what helped. Did packing your bag make the morning easier? Did putting your phone away help you finish? Did asking your teacher clear up something confusing?

That is useful information for your company. Keep doing what helps. Adjust what keeps getting in your way.

Once a week, give yourself a few minutes to look back and plan ahead. We'll call it your weekly CEO check-in. It simply means checking how your company is doing.

Be honest. Celebrate something you did well. Choose one thing to improve. Put your next step on the calendar.

Small wins can teach you how to keep moving forward. Notice them, enjoy them, and build on them.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Give yourself credit for a step forward. Then use what you learned.

DEPARTMENT: TIME AND HABITS | CHECKING YOUR PROGRESS

Make time. Build habits. Follow through.

LOOK BACK. BUILD FORWARD.

ONE SMALL WIN I AM PROUD OF

WHAT HELPED IT HAPPEN

ONE THING I WILL KEEP DOING OR CHANGE NEXT WEEK

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Give yourself credit for a step forward. Then use what you learned.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

YOUR WEEKLY CEO CHECK-IN

> Notice a win. Learn a lesson. Plan your next step.

Meet once a week, whatever entry you are reading. Check your calendar, habit tracker and goal from Entry 5. Copy or print this tool for continued use.

Last week's promise	Kept / part / no	What happened / next step

ONE SMALL WIN AND WHAT HELPED

This week's promise	When / where

SUPPORT I NEED / NEXT CHECK-IN TIME

Ask someone you trust to check one promise if useful.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Give your promises a plan and a review.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

TURN FAILURE INTO A LESSON

> Learn from what went wrong. Come back with a better plan.

Many successful people have failed more times than you might imagine. What helped them grow was learning from those failures and using the lessons.

You studied and didn't get the grade you wanted. You tried out and didn't make the team. Something you cared about didn't work out.

It hurts. I know that feeling. I've worked hard, failed, and had to figure out what to do next. I'm still learning.

Here's what I want you to understand: failure can become one of your greatest teachers - if you pay attention to the lesson.

Ask what happened. Did you need more practice? A different approach? A clearer explanation? Talk to someone who can help you understand.

Then use what you learn. That's how you give yourself a chance to come back stronger, sharper, and smarter.

Your Leadership department grows when you learn to handle a setback without giving up on yourself. Sometimes you'll try again. Sometimes you'll change direction.

A disappointing result doesn't decide your future. Learn, adjust, and take your next step.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

The lesson becomes useful when you put it into action.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

USE THE LESSON

WHAT DIDN'T WORK OUT

WHAT I LEARNED - OR NEED HELP UNDERSTANDING

ONE CHANGE I WILL MAKE BEFORE MY NEXT ATTEMPT

A REMINDER FOR YOU

The lesson becomes useful when you put it into action.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP | DECISIONS

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

LEARN WHEN TO SAY NO

> Say no to what pulls you away from the future you want.

As an adult, I've learned that successful people protect their time and goals. They say no - even to things they might enjoy - because they know what they're working toward.

You can start practicing that now.

"Come on. Everyone is doing it."

Maybe someone wants you to skip class, join in making fun of someone, or put off something important. In that moment, fitting in can feel bigger than your future.

Pause. Think about the big picture.

You've started setting goals and building your company. Don't let a distraction or someone else's pressure make the decision for you.

Stand firm in what matters to you. You can say, "That's not for me," "I have something I need to finish," or simply, "No."

Your Leadership department grows when you learn to choose with purpose.

That doesn't mean saying no to every new experience. Say yes to friendships, activities, and opportunities that help you learn and enjoy life. Be willing to try something useful, even when you feel nervous.

If a situation feels unsafe, get help from a trusted adult.

Your future deserves your attention. Make choices you can feel good about after the moment has passed.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A thoughtful no can protect something you care about.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP | DECISIONS

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

MAKE YOUR CHOICE

ONE DISTRACTION OR PRESSURE THAT COULD PULL ME AWAY FROM MY GOALS

WHAT I WILL SAY OR DO WHEN IT HAPPENS

WHAT SAYING NO WILL MAKE ROOM FOR

TRY THIS | OPTIONAL

Friends want you to leave before a study session you promised to attend.

A: Leave without updating anyone.

B: Keep your plan or agree on a change before you go.

B gives your goals and your promise a place in the decision.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A thoughtful no can protect something you care about.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP | INTEGRITY

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

SET YOUR STANDARD

> Do your work with honesty and care. That personal standard starts today.

"Cheaters never win, and winners never cheat."

That's something I grew up hearing. My great-grandmother taught me to be honest and never cheat because someone is always watching.

As I've grown, I've learned that integrity also means doing the right thing when nobody seems to be watching.

Copying an answer or claiming someone else's work might feel like an easy way out. You might think, "Just this once." But those choices add up.

When you skip the learning, you miss the details, practice, and information you may need later. A completed assignment means less if you still can't do the work.

Your Leadership department needs a standard: be honest, give your best effort, and ask for help when you need it.

Finding a smarter way to work is good. Being dishonest about the work is different. If you aren't sure what help your teacher allows, ask.

I want you to approach your work like you're getting paid for it - with care, effort, and pride. One day, people may pay you for the skills and habits you're building now.

If you've cheated before, own it and work on making it right. You can choose a better standard.

Start practicing today the kind of person you want people to trust tomorrow.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

The work you do honestly helps build skills you can carry with you.

DEPARTMENT: LEADERSHIP | INTEGRITY

Choose thoughtfully. Own your part. Ask for help.

CHOOSE YOUR STANDARD

ONE HONEST STANDARD I WILL PRACTICE

WHAT FOLLOWING IT WILL LOOK LIKE IN MY SCHOOLWORK OR DAILY LIFE

WHAT I WILL DO WHEN I FEEL TEMPTED TO TAKE A DISHONEST SHORTCUT

A REMINDER FOR YOU

The work you do honestly helps build skills you can carry with you.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

LEARN THE VALUE OF A DOLLAR

> Behind the things you have, there is often someone's time, work, and sacrifice.

Think about the people who care for you - your parents, family, guardians, or others who help you along the way.

The food you eat. The clothes you wear. The ride to school. Those things take money, time, and effort. It can be easy to overlook that when someone else is handling it.

I was raised by my great-grandparents. They didn't have a lot to give me, but they taught me the value of hard work and earning a dollar. That lesson has stayed with me.

I want you to start noticing what it takes to provide the things you use every day.

Imagine working two hours to earn $20. Then imagine spending $10 without thinking. That purchase took one hour of your work.

It feels different when you look at it that way.

Your Money department starts with understanding the effort behind a dollar.

When you receive money, give it some thought. What do you need? What can you save? Is the thing you want worth the cost?

You can also look for ways to contribute. Help with a chore. Take care of what you already have. Ask a trusted adult about a safe way to earn money by doing something useful.

You aren't responsible for carrying every adult problem. But you can begin to understand, appreciate, and make thoughtful choices.

Notice the effort. Respect the sacrifice. Learn to care for what you're given and what you earn.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Learning the value of a dollar starts with seeing the work behind it.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

PUT APPRECIATION INTO ACTION

ONE THING SOMEONE DOES FOR ME THAT I WANT TO APPRECIATE MORE

ONE WAY I WILL HELP OR SHOW MY APPRECIATION

ONE BETTER CHOICE I WILL MAKE WITH MONEY OR SOMETHING I ALREADY HAVE

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Learning the value of a dollar starts with seeing the work behind it.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY | BUILDING VALUE

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

BUY SOMETHING THAT HELPS YOU BUILD

> Before you spend your money, think about what it could help you build.

When I was seven, I asked my great-grandfather for a bicycle for Christmas.

Christmas morning, there was a lawn mower under the tree.

My grandpa told me, "Ponte a trabajar." Get to work.

I went around the neighborhood cutting grass. In three months, I had saved enough to buy the bike.

But I made a different choice. I bought another lawn mower and had my friends work with me.

I wanted a bike. My great-grandfather gave me a way to earn it - and I discovered I could build something bigger.

The mower was an asset: something I owned that had value. It also helped me make money. The bike would have been something to enjoy. Both had value, but they served different purposes.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Sometimes the most valuable purchase is the one that helps you create your next opportunity.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY | BUILDING VALUE

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

ENTRY 12 | CONTINUED

That difference changed how I looked at money.

Your Money department needs to think about more than what you can buy today. Could some of that money help you learn a skill, get useful equipment, or create something people need?

You don't have to turn every interest into a business. Enjoy your life, too. Just learn to recognize when you have a chance to build.

That lesson stayed with me as I moved into banking, real estate, and building companies.

Learn it early: money can buy something you want, and it can help you build a way to earn.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Sometimes the most valuable purchase is the one that helps you create your next opportunity.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY | BUILDING VALUE

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

FIND YOUR "LAWN MOWER"

SOMETHING I WANT TO SAVE FOR

A SKILL, TOOL, OR USEFUL PROJECT THAT COULD HELP ME EARN TOWARD IT

ONE SMALL STEP I CAN TAKE - WITH GUIDANCE FROM A TRUSTED ADULT

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Sometimes the most valuable purchase is the one that helps you create your next opportunity.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY | PLANNING AHEAD

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

PICTURE THE LIFE YOU WANT TO BUILD

> Picture your future. Give yourself something worth preparing for.

When I was in high school, I would picture my future.

A house. A car. Places I wanted to go. Things I wanted to do. I thought about the family I hoped to have one day and the freedom I wanted to create.

I hadn't met that family yet, but I was already thinking about how to build a life for them.

That picture gave my daily choices a reason. The work in front of me felt connected to something bigger.

I want you to give yourself a chance to imagine what your life could become.

What would a good day look like? Where might you live? What work would you enjoy? Who would you want to spend time with?

Your picture will change as you learn, meet people, and discover new interests. That's part of growing. You can adjust your plans and keep building.

Then connect the picture to preparation. Your Money department helps you understand what that life may cost and how to prepare for it. Start learning about earning, saving, and the skills you'll need.

Picturing my future helped me find direction. Taking action helped me move toward it.

Dream about the life you want. Learn what it takes. Do one thing today that helps you prepare.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Your picture can change as you grow. Keep learning and give your future your best effort.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY | PLANNING AHEAD

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

PICTURE IT. START BUILDING IT.

ONE PART OF MY FUTURE I AM EXCITED TO BUILD

SOMETHING I NEED TO LEARN ABOUT WHAT IT WILL TAKE

ONE STEP I CAN TAKE NOW

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Your picture can change as you grow. Keep learning and give your future your best effort.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

A MONEY PLAN YOU CAN FOLLOW

> See the math. Then give your own dollars a plan.

Practice example only: Alex earns $200 in one month. Alex pays $50 for needs, spends $60 on extras, and chooses to save $40. Your amounts and responsibilities may be different.

Money for this month	Amount
Money earned (A)	$200
Needed expenses	$50
Optional spending	$60
Total spending (B): $50 + $60	$110
Left after spending (C): $200 - $110	$90
Savings set aside (D)	$40
Unassigned: $90 - $40	$50

Check the plan: $50 needs + $60 extras + $40 savings + $50 unassigned = $200.

The $50 unassigned is money Alex has not given a job yet. Alex could keep it available, save more, or plan another expense. Saving is money set aside, not money spent.

Try it: If Alex saves $10 more and changes nothing else, how much stays unassigned?

Answer: $40. The extra $10 moves to savings; it does not create more money.

Use the blank plan next. Use your own numbers or a made-up example. You never need to share private family income.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Every dollar in your plan should be counted once.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

YOUR FIRST MONTHLY MONEY PLAN

> Practice with a small amount before the numbers get bigger.

Use money you actually manage, or make a practice plan. Keep family financial details private. These are planning categories, not amounts everyone should spend.

Money for this month	Plan $	Actual $
Available money / income (A)
Needs I am responsible for
Extras I choose
Total spending (B)
Money left: A minus B (C)
Amount I choose to save (D)
Unassigned or short: C minus D

MY SAVINGS GOAL / ONE CHANGE I CAN MAKE

A shortfall means the plan needs attention. If there is no room to save, learning the numbers and asking for support are useful first steps.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Use your money plan to learn, not to compare.

DEPARTMENT: MONEY

Know your numbers. Learn to plan.

WHAT WILL MY NEXT STEP NEED?

> Find the facts before you promise the time or money.

THE FUTURE OPPORTUNITY OR GOAL I AM RESEARCHING

What I need to find out	What I learned / source
Up-front cost or requirement
Other costs / time / transport
Deadline or next available start
Support or assistance to ask about

AN UNKNOWN I WILL CHECK / WHO CAN HELP

THE NEXT ACTION AND WHEN

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Preparation begins with a question you can investigate.

DEPARTMENT: HEALTH AND ENERGY

Care for your body, emotions, and rest.

TAKE CARE OF THE CEO

> Your health is the foundation of your company. Start caring for it now.

Being young is a good time to build habits you can carry into adulthood.

The food you eat. The rest you get. The movement you make time for. The people around you. The words you tell yourself.

It all affects how you feel and how you show up.

Your Health and Energy department supports every other department. When you're tired, hungry, or overwhelmed, it can be harder to focus, learn, and give your attention to what matters.

I want you to take care of the person building your future - you.

Exercise. Try a sport that interests you. Walk, dance, ride a bike, or find another way to move that fits your abilities. Make room for meals, water, and rest.

Pay attention to your surroundings, too. Do the people around you encourage you, respect you, and help you grow? Spend time with supportive people - and be that person for someone else.

You won't feel your best every day. If something hurts or you're struggling, ask a trusted adult for help.

Start with one healthy habit you can practice.

When you care for your body and mind, you give yourself a stronger foundation to learn, build, and share your best with the world.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Take care of yourself while you build the life you want.

DEPARTMENT: HEALTH AND ENERGY

Care for your body, emotions, and rest.

BUILD ONE HEALTHY HABIT

ONE HABIT THAT COULD HELP ME FEEL BETTER PREPARED FOR MY DAY

WHEN AND HOW I WILL PRACTICE IT

ONE PERSON WHO CAN ENCOURAGE OR SUPPORT ME

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Take care of yourself while you build the life you want.

DEPARTMENT: HEALTH AND ENERGY | YOUR MINDSET

Care for your body, emotions, and rest.

BELIEVE IN YOURSELF

> Start by giving yourself a chance.

"If you don't believe in you, who will?"

I use that question to remind myself that I have a part in building my confidence. Other people can encourage me, but I also need to learn to encourage myself.

I look in the mirror and say, "You are a winner."

That doesn't mean I win every time. I still face problems, make mistakes, and have work to do. It reminds me that I can learn, adjust, and keep going.

I want you to practice that, too.

Pay attention to your words. "I'm bad at everything" gives you nowhere to go. "I haven't learned this yet, but I can practice" gives you a next step.

Your Health and Energy department includes how you speak to yourself. Be honest about what needs work without tearing yourself down.

Then back your words with action. Prepare for the test. Ask the question. Show up to practice. Keep a small promise to yourself.

You won't always feel confident. Let supportive people remind you of your strengths while you learn to recognize them yourself.

It starts with you being willing to try. Give yourself that chance.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Every small promise you keep can give you another reason to trust yourself.

DEPARTMENT: HEALTH AND ENERGY | YOUR MINDSET

Care for your body, emotions, and rest.

BACK YOUR BELIEF WITH ACTION

ONE THING I WANT TO FEEL MORE CONFIDENT DOING

SOMETHING HONEST AND ENCOURAGING I WILL TELL MYSELF

ONE ACTION I WILL TAKE TO BUILD THAT CONFIDENCE

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Every small promise you keep can give you another reason to trust yourself.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

YOUR MIDPOINT CHECKUP

> Pause to learn before adding more work.

Copy your Entry 2 scores. Use the same guide. Your scores are reflections, not grades or tests.

1-3: I need help getting started. 4-6: I'm working on it, but I'm inconsistent. 7-8: I'm doing well most of the time. 9-10: I have good habits here that I keep practicing.

Department	Start	Now	What changed
Time and Habits
Leadership
Money
Health and Energy
Relationships
Reputation
Learning and Growth
Purpose

ONE THING I AM PROUD OF / ONE PLACE I NEED HELP

THE NEXT ACTION I WILL PUT ON MY CALENDAR

A REMINDER FOR YOU

An honest checkup can make the next week better.

DEPARTMENT: HEALTH AND ENERGY | REST

Care for your body, emotions, and rest.

BE PRODUCTIVE. MAKE TIME TO RECHARGE.

> Give your work your attention. Give yourself time to recharge.

I want you to change one word.

Instead of saying, "I'm busy," say, "I'm being productive." Then make sure your actions match.

Being productive means using your time to get something useful done. Finish part of an assignment. Practice a skill. Handle a responsibility. Give it your focus.

Then make room for a break. We all need time to recharge.

Take a walk in the park. Spend time in nature when you can. Put your phone away for a little while and notice what's around you.

Sometimes, stepping away gives your mind room to settle. You may return with a clearer head, a new idea, or a better way to approach a problem.

Your Health and Energy department needs that care. You don't have to fill every open minute with another task.

If your schedule feels impossible, ask a teacher, coach, or trusted adult to help you adjust it.

Be productive with your work. Be thoughtful about your rest. Build a routine that makes room for both.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Taking care of your energy helps you keep building.

DEPARTMENT: HEALTH AND ENERGY | REST

Care for your body, emotions, and rest.

MAKE ROOM TO RECHARGE

ONE USEFUL TASK I WILL GIVE MY ATTENTION TO

HOW I WILL RECHARGE AFTERWARD

WHEN I WILL MAKE TIME FOR THAT BREAK

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Taking care of your energy helps you keep building.

DEPARTMENT: RELATIONSHIPS

Build support. Communicate with respect.

WE RISE BY LIFTING OTHERS

> Be the kind of friend you want to have.

One of my favorite things to do is encourage the people around me.

"Great work." "You can do it." "I see how hard you're trying."

Those words take a few seconds, but they can mean a lot to someone who needs encouragement.

I try to be the friend I want to have. I want people around me who are positive, honest, and willing to help me grow. So I work on giving that same energy to others.

Positive energy can spread. Be someone who helps build people up.

Your Relationships department needs your attention. Celebrate a friend's progress. Include someone who feels left out. Listen when someone needs to talk. Offer help when you can.

Give time to the people who help build you, too. Put your phone away during a conversation. Study together. Take a walk. Let them know you appreciate them.

Encouragement doesn't mean pretending everything is easy. Sometimes it sounds like, "That was hard. Let's figure out your next step."

You are building your future alongside other people. Help them grow, and stay open to the encouragement they offer you.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Give others the care, respect, and encouragement you hope to receive.

DEPARTMENT: RELATIONSHIPS

Build support. Communicate with respect.

LIFT SOMEONE UP

ONE PERSON I WANT TO ENCOURAGE

SOMETHING SPECIFIC I APPRECIATE ABOUT THEIR EFFORT

HOW I WILL SHOW ENCOURAGEMENT OR MAKE TIME FOR THEM

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Give others the care, respect, and encouragement you hope to receive.

DEPARTMENT: RELATIONSHIPS | COMMUNICATION

Build support. Communicate with respect.

BE THE FIRST TO SAY HELLO

> Speak clearly. Show respect. Learn to ask for help.

Learning to communicate is one of the most useful skills you can build in high school.

Start by introducing yourself. "Hi, I'm ____. It's nice to meet you." Look toward the person, speak clearly, and give them your attention. When a handshake is welcome, use a firm, comfortable grip.

You don't have to sound impressive. Help the other person understand you.

I want you to learn to communicate with your teachers, counselors, coaches, and school staff. Tell them your goals and what you're working on. Share where you're stuck. Ask questions before a small problem becomes a bigger one.

Try this: "I want to improve in this class, but I'm struggling with ____. Can you help me figure out where to start?"

Your Relationships department gets stronger when people understand what you need - and when you listen to them, too.

Making friends and speaking in front of people can feel uncomfortable. Practice in small moments. Someone else may be waiting for you to say hello.

Be the first to say hi. Ask a question. Start a conversation. Always communicate with respect, even when you disagree.

People can help you more when they understand you. Give them a chance. Learn to speak up and ask for help.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A simple hello can be the beginning of a friendship, useful guidance, or a new opportunity.

DEPARTMENT: RELATIONSHIPS | COMMUNICATION

Build support. Communicate with respect.

START ONE CONVERSATION

SOMEONE I WANT TO INTRODUCE MYSELF TO OR ASK FOR GUIDANCE

MY FIRST SENTENCE

ONE GOAL, QUESTION, OR CHALLENGE I WANT TO SHARE

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A simple hello can be the beginning of a friendship, useful guidance, or a new opportunity.

DEPARTMENT: RELATIONSHIPS | BOUNDARIES

Build support. Communicate with respect.

CHOOSE FRIENDS WHO RESPECT YOU

> A good friendship makes room for your goals, your time, and your limits.

A friend wants to copy your assignment. Someone keeps distracting you after you've said you need to study. You say you're uncomfortable, but they keep pushing.

I want you to understand something: you're allowed to set a boundary.

A boundary is a clear limit about what you will do or accept.

"I'll help you understand the work, but I'm not sending my answers."

"I need to finish this. I'll talk with you later."

Be respectful and clear. Give the person a chance to understand.

Friends can make mistakes. A good friend can listen, apologize, and change how they treat you. But if someone keeps ignoring your limits, pressuring you, or making fun of your goals, pay attention.

Maybe that friendship needs some distance. Maybe those aren't the friends you need around you.

Your Relationships department should include people who respect you and want to see you grow. Be that kind of friend in return.

If someone threatens you or makes you feel unsafe, ask a trusted adult for help.

You don't have to keep giving someone access to your time just because you've known them a long time.

Choose people who respect the person you are and the person you're working to become.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Friendship should leave room for you to grow.

DEPARTMENT: RELATIONSHIPS | BOUNDARIES

Build support. Communicate with respect.

SET ONE CLEAR LIMIT

ONE SITUATION WHERE I NEED A BOUNDARY

THE RESPECTFUL WORDS I WILL USE

WHAT I WILL DO IF THE BOUNDARY KEEPS BEING IGNORED

TRY THIS | OPTIONAL

A friend keeps messaging while you work, even after you asked for quiet time.

A: Keep replying and drop your work.

B: Restate your limit and say when you can reply.

B respects the friendship and protects the time you set aside.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Friendship should leave room for you to grow.

DEPARTMENT: REPUTATION

Keep your word. Care about your impact.

BUILD A NAME PEOPLE CAN TRUST

> Give people something good to remember about you.

Ten years after high school, people may still remember how you treated them.

Were you the person who encouraged them? Included them? Stood beside them when someone was being cruel?

I want you to leave high school with a reputation you can be proud of - someone who supported others, kept their word, and brought positive energy into the room.

Your Reputation department is being built right now.

When you say you're going to do something, do it. Promises made should be promises kept. If something changes, communicate early and work on making it right.

If someone is being bullied, don't join in or share the post. Support the person, help them reach a trusted adult, and speak up when it's safe. You don't need to put yourself in danger to make a difference.

Your actions online count, too. Think before you post, comment, or pass something along.

Reputations can last a long time. That's why I want you to pay attention now. But a mistake doesn't have to define you forever. Take responsibility and show people a better pattern through your actions.

Start building a name that stands for kindness, courage, and follow-through. Give people reasons to trust you.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

The way you treat people today can become part of how they remember you years from now.

DEPARTMENT: REPUTATION

Keep your word. Care about your impact.

BUILD YOUR REPUTATION TODAY

THREE WORDS I WANT PEOPLE TO CONNECT WITH MY NAME

ONE ACTION I WILL TAKE TO LIVE UP TO THOSE WORDS

ONE PROMISE I NEED TO KEEP - OR GIVE SOMEONE AN HONEST UPDATE ABOUT

A REMINDER FOR YOU

The way you treat people today can become part of how they remember you years from now.

DEPARTMENT: REPUTATION | TEAMWORK

Keep your word. Care about your impact.

MAKE YOUR TEAM BETTER

> You don't need to be the captain to make a difference.

Your group project is due tomorrow, and one person hasn't finished their part. Now everyone else is worried.

You know how that feels. I want you to become someone who helps the team move forward.

I build teams in my work. One thing I value is knowing people will handle their responsibilities and speak up when they need help. You can start building that skill now.

Your Reputation department grows through how you work with others.

Whether you're in sports, band, a club, a class project, or helping at home, understand your role. Know what needs to get done and when. Come prepared. Listen. Do your part.

If you're stuck, say so early. Give the group time to help or adjust.

Encourage the person who is learning. Share credit. Respect the work someone does even when it gets less attention than yours.

Being a good teammate doesn't mean quietly doing everyone else's work. If responsibilities aren't being shared fairly, ask the teacher, coach, or leader to help make a plan.

Show up ready to contribute. Help the people around you do their best, too.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A strong team needs people who contribute, communicate, and care.

DEPARTMENT: REPUTATION | TEAMWORK

Keep your word. Care about your impact.

DO YOUR PART

ONE TEAM, GROUP, OR SHARED RESPONSIBILITY I AM PART OF

MY JOB - AND WHEN I NEED TO HAVE IT DONE

ONE WAY I CAN HELP THE TEAM WORK BETTER TOGETHER

TRY THIS | OPTIONAL

A group member has not sent their part, and the deadline is close.

A: Do it all without talking to anyone.

B: Ask what is happening and involve the teacher if you need a fair plan.

B helps the team communicate and share the work fairly.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A strong team needs people who contribute, communicate, and care.

DEPARTMENT: REPUTATION | RESPONSIBILITY

Keep your word. Care about your impact.

"I TAKE RESPONSIBILITY."

> Own your part. Then show what you will do about it.

"I take responsibility."

Those words can be hard to say. Even adults struggle with them. Learning to say them - and mean them - can help you grow into someone people trust.

You missed a deadline. Forgot a promise. Said something hurtful.

Your first reaction might be to blame someone else or explain it away. I want you to pause and own the part that belongs to you.

"I said I would finish my part, and I didn't. That left you waiting. I take responsibility."

Now give those words an action.

Ask what you can repair. Finish the work. Correct the information. Apologize to the person you hurt. Then change what led to the problem.

If you forgot, set a reminder. If you got stuck, ask for help earlier. If you spoke without thinking, practice pausing.

Your Reputation department grows when people see that you can face a mistake honestly and work to make it right.

I've made mistakes, too. Taking responsibility gives me a place to start improving.

You don't need to take blame for something you didn't do. Be honest about your part.

Learn this now: people can count on someone who owns their actions and follows through on making things better.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

"I take responsibility" becomes powerful when your actions back it up.

DEPARTMENT: REPUTATION | RESPONSIBILITY

Keep your word. Care about your impact.

TAKE RESPONSIBILITY

THE PART I NEED TO OWN

WHAT I WILL SAY AND DO TO MAKE IT RIGHT

ONE CHANGE I WILL PRACTICE GOING FORWARD

A REMINDER FOR YOU

"I take responsibility" becomes powerful when your actions back it up.

DEPARTMENT: LEARNING AND GROWTH

Explore, practice, and learn from feedback.

DISCOVER YOUR STRENGTHS BY GETTING INVOLVED

> Give yourself a chance to discover what you enjoy - and what you can become.

When I joined debate in high school, I learned how to communicate, present my ideas, and speak in front of people.

That experience led me to student council. I became junior class president and later student body president.

I didn't discover those strengths by sitting back and wondering what I might be good at. I got involved. I gave myself a chance to learn.

I want you to give yourself that same opportunity.

Your school may offer sports, debate, student council, music, art, career clubs, or volunteer groups. Explore what is available. Find something that interests you and fits your schedule.

Your Learning and Growth department needs experiences that help you understand yourself.

You might discover that you enjoy leading, solving problems, working with your hands, or helping others. You might try something and realize it isn't for you. That teaches you something, too.

Be coachable. Ask questions. Listen to useful feedback and give yourself time to practice.

You don't have to join everything or become president of a club. Start by participating.

An organization can give you more than an activity. It can help you discover your strengths, your interests, and a direction you hadn't considered.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Getting involved can help you discover a part of yourself you haven't met yet.

DEPARTMENT: LEARNING AND GROWTH

Explore, practice, and learn from feedback.

EXPLORE ONE OPPORTUNITY

ONE ORGANIZATION OR ACTIVITY I WANT TO LEARN ABOUT

WHO I WILL ASK - AND WHEN I WILL TAKE THE FIRST STEP

A SKILL OR INTEREST I WANT TO EXPLORE THROUGH IT

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Getting involved can help you discover a part of yourself you haven't met yet.

DEPARTMENT: LEARNING AND GROWTH | MENTORSHIP

Explore, practice, and learn from feedback.

FIND PEOPLE YOU CAN LEARN FROM

> Be willing to ask. A conversation can open a door.

Mentorship is one of the greatest opportunities you can look for. A mentor is someone who shares experience and guidance to help you grow.

In high school, I wasn't shy about meeting people in my community. If a friend's parent owned a business or did work I admired, I asked questions.

"What did you do in high school?"
"Did you go to college?"
"What advice would you give someone my age?"

I wanted to learn from people who had already been through things I hadn't experienced.

When people see that you're eager to learn, some will make time to help. Give them a chance to see that in you.

Ask your counselor or a trusted adult about job shadowing, internships, or supervised visits. You might observe someone for an afternoon or find a longer opportunity that fits your age and schedule.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Asking for guidance can help you learn things you might otherwise spend years figuring out.

DEPARTMENT: LEARNING AND GROWTH | MENTORSHIP

Explore, practice, and learn from feedback.

ENTRY 24 | CONTINUED

Your Learning and Growth department can benefit from their lessons - including mistakes you may be able to avoid.

Come prepared. Listen. Ask thoughtful questions. Say thank you and put useful advice into practice.

Over time, those conversations can build a network: people you know, learn from, and may work with in the future.

Not everyone will be available. Keep looking respectfully.

You won't know what an opportunity could become until you ask. Take that first step.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Asking for guidance can help you learn things you might otherwise spend years figuring out.

DEPARTMENT: LEARNING AND GROWTH | MENTORSHIP

Explore, practice, and learn from feedback.

ASK FOR AN OPPORTUNITY

SOMEONE WHOSE WORK OR EXPERIENCE I WANT TO LEARN ABOUT

A TRUSTED ADULT WHO CAN HELP ME MAKE THE CONNECTION

MY FIRST QUESTION OR REQUEST

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Asking for guidance can help you learn things you might otherwise spend years figuring out.

DEPARTMENT: LEARNING AND GROWTH | CURIOSITY

Explore, practice, and learn from feedback.

NEVER STOP LEARNING

> Stay curious. Learn something useful. Put it into action.

With technology and AI, you have more ways to explore a question than ever before.

Use the tools available to you. Ask how something works. Look up a word you don't understand. Learn about a career, a business, or a skill that interests you.

You may be capable of learning more than you think. Give yourself a chance to find out.

Read books. Read biographies - stories about people's lives. Pay attention to their choices, mistakes, and how they handled challenges. There may be a lesson you can use in your own life.

Your Learning and Growth department should keep growing long after graduation. I want you to become a lifelong learner: someone who keeps asking questions and building skills.

AI can help explain an idea or give you practice questions. Follow your school's rules, protect private information, and check important answers. These tools can make mistakes, too.

You won't understand everything immediately. Ask for another explanation. Try an example. Get help when you need it.

Then use what you learn. Practice the skill. Change a habit. Try a helpful idea.

Don't just collect information. Let something you learn improve something you do.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You don't have to learn everything quickly. Keep learning - and give yourself time to understand.

DEPARTMENT: LEARNING AND GROWTH | CURIOSITY

Explore, practice, and learn from feedback.

LEARN IT. USE IT.

ONE SUBJECT, SKILL, OR PERSON'S STORY I WANT TO LEARN ABOUT

THE BOOK, PERSON, OR TOOL I WILL LEARN FROM

ONE USEFUL THING I WILL PUT INTO PRACTICE

TRY THIS | OPTIONAL

An AI answer sounds polished, but one detail does not match your class notes.

A: Submit it because it sounds confident.

B: Check the detail and explain the answer yourself, following class rules.

B helps you learn and catch a mistake before using the answer.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You don't have to learn everything quickly. Keep learning - and give yourself time to understand.

DEPARTMENT: PURPOSE

Know your reason. Let it guide your choices.

GIVE YOUR HARD WORK A REASON

> Know why you're building. Let that reason guide your choices.

Some days, you won't feel like doing the work. Another assignment. Another practice. Another chance to put things off.

That's when it helps to remember why you started.

When I was in high school, I thought about the family I hoped to have one day. I hadn't met them yet, but I wanted to become someone they could count on and be proud of.

That gave my choices a purpose.

Your Purpose department holds your reason for building. It doesn't have to sound impressive. It needs to matter to you.

"I want to be proud of myself."

"I want more choices for my future."

"I want to help my family or community."

You don't need to know your future job to know the kind of person you want to become.

I want you to write down an honest reason. Then connect it to something you can do today. If you want to help others, practice being dependable. If you want more opportunities, build a useful skill.

Your reason may grow and change as you learn.

Give your effort a purpose you can return to when the work gets difficult.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A reason that matters to you can help you take the next step.

DEPARTMENT: PURPOSE

Know your reason. Let it guide your choices.

WRITE YOUR REASON

WHO OR WHAT I AM BUILDING FOR

THE KIND OF PERSON I WANT TO BECOME

ONE ACTION I WILL TAKE THAT SUPPORTS THAT PURPOSE

A REMINDER FOR YOU

A reason that matters to you can help you take the next step.

DEPARTMENT: PURPOSE | LIFE AFTER HIGH SCHOOL

Know your reason. Let it guide your choices.

MAKE THESE YEARS COUNT

> Think beyond what you might miss today. Consider what an opportunity could give you tomorrow.

During my junior year of high school, I had an opportunity to spend the summer at Princeton.

I didn't go.

I wanted to stay home, play basketball, and go to open gym with my friends. At the time, that felt more important.

Looking back, I wish I had gone. I wonder what I could have learned, who I might have met, and what possibilities I might have discovered.

I'm sharing that because I want you to think carefully when an opportunity comes your way.

Enjoy your friends and your high school years. Give your future a place in the decision, too.

You've been learning to lead the company of you. Now put your departments to work together.

Use Purpose to remember what matters to you. Use Learning and Growth to explore a career. Use Relationships to ask for guidance. Use Time and Habits to prepare and meet deadlines.

Ask your counselor about scholarships, internships, summer programs, college, or career training. Learn what each opportunity requires and what help is available.

You won't be able to do everything. But before you say no, understand what you could gain.

Make a thoughtful choice - one you can feel good about because you considered the bigger picture. Then start building toward it.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Before you turn down an opportunity, give yourself time to understand what it could mean for your future.

DEPARTMENT: PURPOSE | LIFE AFTER HIGH SCHOOL

Know your reason. Let it guide your choices.

GIVE AN OPPORTUNITY A CLOSER LOOK

ONE OPPORTUNITY OR FUTURE PATH I WANT TO EXPLORE

WHAT I COULD GAIN - AND WHAT I WOULD NEED TO WORK AROUND

WHO I WILL ASK FOR GUIDANCE - AND MY NEXT STEP

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Before you turn down an opportunity, give yourself time to understand what it could mean for your future.

DEPARTMENT: PURPOSE | COMMUNITY

Know your reason. Let it guide your choices.

GIVE BACK. HELP SOMEONE ELSE GROW.

> Someone helped make a way for you. Look for ways to do the same for others.

I have a deep connection to my community. Educators and people I met growing up helped teach me, guide me, and see what was possible. I'm grateful for the people who came before me and helped pave the way.

That's why I feel a responsibility to pay it forward - to pass that help on.

In eighth grade, I volunteered at a nursing home. My great-grandparents had passed away, and spending time there helped me feel close to them.

I pushed residents in their wheelchairs outside or to the cafeteria. Along the way, I listened. I met people who had lived amazing lives and shared their wisdom with me.

I went there to help, and they gave me something valuable, too.

That's part of the circle of life. People invest their time and care in us. As we grow, we find ways to help the next person.

Your Purpose department reaches beyond your own success.

Welcome a student who is new to high school. Volunteer through your school or a trusted organization. Learn how your city works. If you notice something that could be better, ask how you can get involved.

You don't need money or a title to contribute. Your time, attention, and willingness to help matter.

Appreciate the people who helped you grow. Then look around and ask, "Who can I help?"

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You can help build the community that helps build you.

DEPARTMENT: PURPOSE | COMMUNITY

Know your reason. Let it guide your choices.

PAY IT FORWARD

SOMEONE WHOSE GUIDANCE OR HELP I AM GRATEFUL FOR

ONE WAY I CAN HELP ANOTHER STUDENT OR MY COMMUNITY

WHO I WILL CONTACT - AND WHEN I WILL TAKE THE FIRST STEP

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You can help build the community that helps build you.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY | PROGRESS

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

LOOK AT WHAT YOU'RE BUILDING

> Notice your progress. Give your next steps a clear direction.

Take a minute with me. Think about the choices you've practiced throughout this journal.

Maybe you're checking your calendar, asking questions sooner, keeping more promises, or making time for people who matter.

Those changes count.

Now go back to your starting scores in Entry 2. Look at each department again. Where have you improved? What still needs attention?

Your score is only part of the picture. Write down something you actually did. "I packed my bag four nights this week" tells you more than "I'm getting organized."

I'm still building my own company and myself. There are things I do well and things I need to handle better. Paying attention helps me decide what to work on next.

I want you to do the same.

Some habits will take more time. If a plan didn't work, figure out what needs to change. Make the step smaller, choose another time, or ask for help.

Be proud of your progress. Be honest about the work ahead. Use both to keep building.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Your review gives you information you can use to make a better plan.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY | PROGRESS

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

YOUR COMPANY: THEN AND NOW

Use the same scoring guide from Entry 2. These are reflections, not grades or tests.

1-3: I need help getting started. 4-6: I'm working on it, but I'm inconsistent. 7-8: I'm doing well most of the time. 9-10: I have good habits here that I keep practicing.

Department	Start	Midpoint	Now
Time and Habits
Leadership
Money
Health and Energy
Relationships
Reputation
Learning and Growth
Purpose

ONE CHANGE I CAN POINT TO AND FEEL PROUD OF

THE DEPARTMENT I WILL FOCUS ON NEXT - AND ONE ACTION I WILL TAKE

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Your review gives you information you can use to make a better plan.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY REPORT

> Record the changes you can actually point to.

Goal	Where I started	Where I am now

A GOAL OR SMALL STEP REACHED / WHAT I DID

A HABIT: DONE / PLANNED IN MY LATEST WEEK

A LESSON OR REPAIR I HAVE PUT INTO ACTION

WHAT NEEDS ATTENTION / MY NEXT PRIORITY

Keep this report with your first checkup. Entry 30 helps you plan the next 90 days. Keep using your daily and weekly CEO check-ins after you finish reading.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Keep the evidence. Carry the lesson forward.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY | WHAT COMES NEXT

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

KEEP BUILDING THE COMPANY OF YOU

> The journal ends here. Your opportunity to grow keeps going.

When I started high school, I couldn't see the whole road ahead. I knew I wanted a better future, and I started looking for ways to build one.

I'm still building today.

That's what I want you to understand: becoming the CEO of you is something you keep practicing. You maintain what's working, improve what needs attention, and adjust as life changes.

You now have a way to look at your whole company. Your time. Your choices. Your money. Your health. Your relationships. Your reputation. Your learning. Your purpose.

Keep giving each department attention.

For your next 90 days, choose one goal that matters to you. Break it into small steps. Put the first step on your calendar. Use your daily check-in and take a few minutes each week to see how your plan is working.

Ask for guidance. Try opportunities. Learn from mistakes. Encourage someone else.

I wrote this because I want you to see what is possible for your life - and take action toward it.

You don't need to become someone else. Keep building the best version of yourself.

Take it one day at a time. Give it your effort. You'll thank yourself later.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You are the CEO of you. Keep learning, keep growing, and keep building.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY | WHAT COMES NEXT

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

YOUR NEXT 90 DAYS

ONE GOAL I WILL WORK TOWARD - AND WHY IT MATTERS

THE DEPARTMENT OR DEPARTMENTS THAT WILL HELP ME REACH IT

MY FIRST SMALL STEP - AND WHEN I WILL TAKE IT

WHEN I WILL CHECK MY PROGRESS EACH WEEK

A REMINDER FOR YOU

You are the CEO of you. Keep learning, keep growing, and keep building.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

A LETTER TO MY FUTURE SELF

> Keep this note. Come back to it as you build your next chapter.

Write to yourself as if you are checking in 90 days from now. What do you want to remember? What have you started learning? Who can support your next step?

You can begin: "I want you to remember..." Write as much or as little as you need. This letter belongs to you.

DEAR FUTURE ME,

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Keep becoming someone you are proud to be.

DEPARTMENT: YOUR PERSONAL COMPANY

See your whole company. Choose a starting point.

KEEP YOUR COMPANY GROWING

REUSE YOUR TOOLS

Return to your daily check-in, seven-day habit tracker, weekly check-in, money plan, and 90-day plan whenever they help. Print those pages again for your own use, or copy the headings into a notebook. You do not need an account or a phone to keep practicing.

YOUR PRIVACY MATTERS

Your journal is personal. Share only what you choose. You can skip a private detail or use a made-up example. If something is worrying you or you feel unsafe, talk with a trusted adult who can help.

ABOUT THIS EDITION

You Are the CEO of You | The High School Journal. Digital edition, 2026. Written by Mark Hanna.

Copyright 2026 Mark Hanna. All rights reserved. The purchaser may print the journal and reuse its worksheets for their own personal use. Please do not redistribute the digital file, resell copies, or post its pages publicly. Schools and groups should obtain permission for copies beyond an individual purchase.

This journal shares personal experiences and practical learning activities. It does not promise a particular result. Growth takes practice, time, and support.

A REMINDER FOR YOU

Keep learning. Keep growing. Keep building.